

Online Lingo For Parents

May 4, 2006 07:17 PM PDT

▶ Also on klastv.com

▶ AbbreviationZ.com

▶ Internet Slang Blog

▶ NetLingo.com

▶ NoSlang.com

▶ Peevish Dictionary of Slang

▶ The Parents Edge

If you are still trying to figure out what your children are saying when they put LOL or BFF on their emails, don't worry there is help.

Several new websites have popped up to help parents decode the messages.

NetLingo.com lets parents look up abbreviations or slang terms their child may be using while online. And abbreviationz.com contains more than 300,000 abbreviations in many categories such as computing, Internet and chat.

If you want to figure out exactly what your kids are saying, explore the links listed below:

NetLingo.com | AbbreviationZ.com

The Parents Edge | NoSlang.com's Complete Guide to Netspeak