

The week's best invented words

Aug 26, 2007

P.M.S., n.: Permanent Male Syndrome. Applied to a man who is "continually unintelligent or chauvinistic." (pseudodictionary.com)

MEANDERTHAL, n.: the annoying person who moves slowly and aimlessly in front of you when you're in a hurry. (WordSpy.com)

EXPEED, v.: "to greatly exceed the speed limit." (From Ed White, Port Hope)

WI-FIVE, n.: a non-contact high-five with someone you're talking to on a cellphone. Example: Spike: "I just scored free tickets to the Rammstein concert." Buffy: "Wi-five!" (UrbanDictionary.com)

ORBITUARY, n.: worldwide coverage of a famous person's death. (unwords.com)

SHEEPL, n.: "people who behave in direct reaction to saturation advertising." (netlingo.com)

BITSING, v.: "the act of singing only small portions of songs, over and over." (unwords.com)

<http://www.thestar.com/sciencetech/article/249844>